IMMIGRATION CANADA

The new Express Entry System currently will manage the applications for Permanent Residence under following federal economic immigration programs:

1. The Federal Skilled Worker Program
2. The Federal Skilled Trades Program, and
3. The Canadian Experience Class

Provinces and territories will also be able to recruit candidates from Express Entry System through their Provincial Nominee Programs, in Order to meet local labour market needs.

Potential candidates can complete an express entry profile with their skills, work experience, language ability, education and other details. Those who meet the criteria of one of the federal immigration programs listed above will be accepted into a pool of candidates. Anyone who does not have a job offer supported by the Labour Market Impact Assessment (LMIA) or a nomination from a province or a territory, must register with Employment and Social Development Canada's (ESDC) Job Bank. The ESDC Job Bank will then help connect Express Entry candidates with eligible employers in Canada. Students completing two year of study in Canada have an added advantage in securing more points.

Express Entry candidates will subsequently be ranked against others in the pool, using a point-based system called the Comprehensive Ranking System. Points are awarded based on the information that has been provided in the candidate's profile. Those candidates with the highest scores in the pool will then be issued an Invitation to Apply. If an Invitation to Apply is issued, the candidate will have 60 days to submit an online application for Permanent Residence.

Following graduation, students on an F-1 visa can apply for Optional Practical Training (OPT), which allows them to work in their chosen field for 12-24 months after completing their studies.

Some companies may even sponsor students for a H1-B Temporary Worker Visa, allowing them to continue living in the USA as long as they work for that company. Most USA institutions have a career services department staffed with professionals focused on helping students with their résumé, teaching job interview skills, and helping them find job opportunities.
